

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, December 11. 1706.

Hague, December 10.

THE Minister of Sweden here has declar'd that the 9th of November past N. S. King Augustus ratified the Treaty of Peace made with his Master; he says further that King Augustus has actually sent his Swedish Majesty the Diploma of his Abdication, in Form, according to the 4th Article of the Treaty. King Augustus's Minister here has receiv'd no Account yet of either of these Particulars. The 15th Article of that Treaty gives some uneasiness to those who wish well to the common Cause; it imports, That till the Ratification and Execution of the Treaty, as also till such Time as King Augustus has obtain'd the Guaranty (which by the 21st Article he is oblig'd to do) of the Emperor, the Queen of England, and the States General, the King of Sweden may continue in Saxony, and there demand and take Forrage and Pay for his Troops: It has been urg'd to the Minister of Sweden, that by Virtue of that Article the Swedes may stay a long Time in that Electorate, seeing 'tis uncertain at what Time those 3 Potentates will grant their Guaranty, nor can it be absolutely depended on that they will grant it at all: To this he answer'd, that by the said 21st Article 'tis agreed that King Augustus shall have 6 Month's Time to solicit that Guaranty; but that the other Articles being executed, which they may be in less than so many Days, his Master will retire out of Saxony. Perceiving however that the long stay of the Swedes in that Electorate, gives great Umbrage, he has positively declar'd that the King of Sweden has order'd his Troops to hold themselves ready to march within 4 Weeks. 4 or 5 Days ago the States receiv'd an Answer from the King of Sweden to a Letter which they wrote to him the 7th of September to dissuade him from the Invasion with which he then threaten'd Saxony: The long Delay of that Answer, which might have come above 7 Weeks ago, and certain ambiguous Expressions in it, afford Ground for Reflection. The States discover no Manner of Uneasiness about the King of Sweden; but seem desirous to be thought to rely confidently on the strict Alliance that is between them. They lately wrote a very obliging Letter to Count Guldenstolp, who has the chief Management in the Affairs of the Chancery of Stockholm (where some Emissaries of France are said to be very busy); that Count has return'd them an Answer in very respectful Terms, in which he professes that he preserves the same good Affection he always had for the common Cause, and the Liberties of Europe.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Dec. 14.

Warsaw, Nov. 27. The Saxon Troops are divided into 2 Detachments, one of which is on the march towards the Palatinate of Cracow, and the other towards Prussia. The Muscovites and Cossacks have taken their Quarters in the Palatinate of Russia, and the City of Lemberg has been forc'd to receive a Garrison of 3 or 4000 Men. The Calmuck Tartars are order'd to return to their own Country, because of the Disorders committed by them.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Dec. 14.

Warsaw, Dec. 1. Yesterday King Augustus set out from hence for Cracow, attended by the Generals Fleming and Schulembourg, and several other Persons of Note. General Mardefeld is also gone from hence to the King of Sweden his Master in Saxony, with King Augustus's Leave. The other Swedish Prisoners taken in the Battle of Kalish, have Liberty granted them to go to Pomerania, on Condition not to bear Arms agen before they are exchanged. 'Tis believ'd King Augustus designs to go from Cracow to Saxony:

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Dec. 14.

Leipsick, Dec. 7. The King of Sweden and King Stanislaus of Poland, have both sent Order to their Troops in great Poland, to be Assistent to King Augustus if it be necessary, that he may get safe out of Poland hither; and we expect him very suddenly. 'Tis talk'd a Treaty of Peace is negotiating between the King of Sweden and the Czar of Muscovy, and that 'tis already in a good Forwardness.

Hague, Dec. 14. It does not appear by any Advices from Saxony, that the King of Sweden is preparing to march out of that Country: Nor are there yet any Letters from any Quarter, that give a certain and clear Account on what Terms the Affair of the Treaty of Peace stands between his Swedish Majesty and King Augustus. There is Advice from a good Hand, that the latter has written several Letters to the King of Sweden, particularly one to excuse himself upon the Necessity he was under to engage in the Action with General Mardefeld; and another since his Ratification of the foresaid Treaty, in which he expresses himself thus, 'That the Loss of his Affection had given him more Uneasiness, than the Crown of Poland had given him Joy; but that the Loss of the latter was grown very easy to him, since he had recover'd his Friendship. The Minister of Sweden here, has caus'd the Treaty to be translated out of the Original Latin into French, and will have it printed in both Languages. In the mean time, the King of Sweden's Continuance in Saxony, where he raises great Numbers of Men, and King Augustus's Forbearance to declare himself one way or t'other concerning the Treaty, make it suspected there is a secret Agreement of no little Consequence between them. Some Catholick German Ministers here are apprehensive the K. of Sweden will raise Troubles in the Empire, by demanding that the Peace of Munster be observ'd with regard to the Protestant Religion, which has suffer'd by several Attempts since that Peace: And this Apprehension of theirs is founded on the 19th Article of the Treaty, which imports, 'That the King of Sweden and King Augustus as Members of the Empire, shall use their Endeavours in Concert to preserve the Protestant Religion as establish'd by the Peace of Munster. Others talk of another Design form'd between the King of Sweden and King Augustus, that relates to the Crown of Hungary: But perhaps all this is Conjecture, occasion'd only by the true State of the Affair of the Treaty being still kept in the Dark; nor indeed is it to be wonder'd at, if the worst Constructions are put upon mysterious Proceedings. I need say nothing to you of the Floes the Partisans of France have, that while the King of Sweden has so good an Army in the Empire, he will offer his Mediation of Peace between the Potentates engag'd gag'd in the present War, because you will see by the Prints that tis advis'd from Paris his Swedish Majesty has by a Letter to that King actually signified his Readyness to offer such his Mediation; But upon the whole Matter, 'tis not believ'd here he has yet so plainly declar'd any such Intentions, and 'tis hop'd King Augustus's Arrival in Saxony, will clear all up, and dissipate the Fears of the Allies and hopes of the Enemy.
